The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.
The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.
The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.
The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.
The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.
The 0.00-6.00 scale is the scoring scale used in the assessment, which measures company performances against society expectations. All company results are based on public domain data sourced by analysts or provided by companies. It is important to note that a low score may only reflect a lack of relevant information made publicly available by the company.